Thursday, September 29 – Water’s Edge Ballroom

 - Introduction of attendees and discussion leaders
- 1:40-2:00 – Addressing questions, discussion among participants
- 2:00-5:15 – Breakout Discussions in “World Café” style.
 - Each participant will have the opportunity to contribute to three discussions around key topics identified in the March Workshop. There will be a total of five group discussions taking place during each one hour period. Participants can self-select which three topics they would like to discuss, and in what order. At the end of each period, participants will rotate to the next table featuring a topic of interest.
 - For example, a given participant may be interested in topics A, B and D (of five possible). He/she can choose those three in any order, and visit the appropriate discussion group for those topics, for one hour each.
 - Each topical discussion group will have a discussion leader, and the participants will be presented with “trigger questions” to help focus the discussion (these questions will be developed and distributed prior to the workshop). The goal will be to offer strategies to address the issue of interest, with the goal of incentivizing, facilitating, or motivating increased engagement of large private landowners in the attainment of landscape-scale conservation goals.
